EXTREMELY RARE in this grade - we could find no record of any offerings. With a trend value of slightly over $1000.00 and with choice quality rarities now usually bringing above such trends, it is probable that our price is conservative. 850.00

THIS LIST #31 EFFECTIVELY CONCLUDES THE END OF another activity cycle for us. We normally think of our business season as starting after the annual American Numismatic Association convention in August and then ending right before it the following year. In these past twelve months, Freeman Craig and Company has issued eight catalogues, all of which were primarily or exclusively concerned with Latin American coinage. During these same months, we moved our entire operation from the financial district of downtown San Francisco to very comfortable quarters a few minutes north of the famous Golden Gate Bridge. In May, we commenced an association with Holland Wallace, well known editor of the Yeoman "brown" book for many years and author of the still authoritative "Central American Coinage Since 1821". This alliance should help us to move a step closer to our goal of becoming the single largest dealer/researcher in the field of Latin American numismatics within the USA.

Overall 1975/1976 has been a most unusual year in the field of foreign coins. The decline in price and popularity of gold bullion caused the market in foreign gold coins to also decline significantly. As the foreign currency exchange rates of many of the major world currencies fell in comparison to the US dollar, the market within those "home" countries became weaker (since the same coins at the same dollar prices became more expensive in the local currency). As a result, many dealers and collectors, both here and abroad, turned to the traditionally "overlooked" series such as Latin American, British Commonwealth and Arabic coins. Thus we have seen a tremendous boom in popularity within our specialized field; as of now, the price structure is just beginning to change dramatically. Whereas we used to have this area somewhat to ourselves at many conventions, we must now compete vigorously for better coins in our area. Thus far we have been successful in obtaining quality coins on a regular basis - for this, we are indebted to those many long-term clients of ours who are now selling their duplicates or their collections back to us.

The next year in numismatics will probably be dominated by another great increase in demand for better quality items. As prices start to spiral upward at the end of this year, we can only hope that the supply of good coins can somehow meet the ever-increasing demand. Already we sense that the most difficult aspect of collecting or dealing in better foreign coins is locating desirable material; price consciousness is no longer the dominating factor in the marketplace.

Our next price list will be released about October 1. Until then, have a happy and rewarding vacation season; we will think about your numismatic interests as we tour Latin America looking for interesting coins, tokens, bank notes, etc.

However, our offices will remain open throughout the summer and fall; our staff will be more than happy to work with any needs you might have. If, by chance or choice, you are staying home in August, you should look through this list carefully. We have lowered the prices of some 150 of these coins to a level at or near our cost in order to start "next year" with a different group of coins. Even in the sleepy summertime,
